The Grand Final of the Mooting Competition

Welcome to the Grand Final of the Laws Mooting Competition. The Moot - R v King - is a legal debate in an imaginary UK Supreme Court, with the points of law argued for the appellants by Daniel Williams & Melissa Woods v the respondents Amrin Bhatti & Caroline Oakes.

We invite you to visit www.LawsBlog.co.uk and look at the results of the early rounds of the competition. In doing so, we ask you to reflect upon the fact that today's moot will be the 54th of the 2009 Mooting Competition. Each moot has involved hours of independent legal research, rehearsal, and presentation. All of this work - i.e. in addition to attendance at special "mooting lessons" - has been undertaken by students since early June 2009 (this is when they started learning Criminal Law). The success of this competition is not just down to the presentations of the finalists, it is down to the work and enthusiasm of all Laws students who have taken part.

Essay Competition Winners

The winner of the Department of Laws Essay Competition 2008-9 is Kasey Jefferson for her essay on Sovereignty. Runners-up certificates will be presented at the Moot Final to: a number of students. A presentation will also be made for the best 'US Politics Podcast'. All Laws students are advised to put details of mooting and essay successes on any UCAS form.

p/p Dr Peter Jepson, Strode's College, Egham.

Extended Projects

Many Laws students will be working over the summer vacation to try and improve their chances of getting into University by undertaking an Extended Project Qualification. There is still an opportunity to work to undertake the Extended Project Qualification starting in September 2009.

Some students are also undertaking what is known as the AQA Baccalaureate or the "English Baccalaureate".

We intend to run a number of courses from September 2009

AS Law and A2 Criminal Law
AS and A2 Citizenship
AS and A2 Gov & Politics

Laws Research
(now an Ext Project Qual)
The Debating Society
Essay Writing Skills
ILEX Legal Studies
(GCSE equiv.)
